EARL HILL SOLILOQUIZES ON MELANCHOLY DAYS

"Leaves are falling everywhere. Through the atmosphere, Likewise through the air."

Acorns and hickorynuts are also falling and our hogs that have been living on half rations for some time are picking up right along and will soon be ready for hog-killing day. Mrs. Hill mentioned the fact recently that the children would have to have some clothes pretty soon. Think she intends to patch mine and hope we will be able to make them do. I have a cow or two that I don't need particularly, but do not see how I can part with them. Have suggested that we probably had more hens than we ought to feed during the winter, but am not sure that Mrs. Hill has caught the hint.

I just mentioned the above facts to show that winter will soon be here.

Bill Arp quoted the lines at the head of this article once, and I have just been "ruminating," as he would say, as to what they mean. Of course, atmosphere and air are pretty much the same thing, literally speaking, but figuratively, there might be a difference. Now, it seems to me that in order to find atmosphere you would have to go into a city or town and out here we have the good old country air. In towns and cities, of course, they do not have many real leaves, but folks shed their leaves sometimes.

Some people are like some trees—hold their leaves and stay pretty and sweet all along the journey of life—but the most of us have seasons when we just have to shed off and be ugly and grouchy and barren, and some even are like little old shrubbery—they shed off every time there comes a little dry spell. However, shedding is not so bad if we do not die out entirely.

The last few years have been trying on farmers and business men, as well, and while some have died out completely, the most of us have only shed our leaves, and when the spring-time of prosperity does come we will come out and show our leaves again. It reminds me of a story most of us have heard. An old tramp had been given a whole loaf of bread, and in sweet contemplation of the great pleasure he would have in eating the loaf, was proceeding down a dusty lane to a nice shady place, where he expected to stay for a while and enjoy that loaf. A little dog came along and jumped up and took the loaf from under his arm. The man was so shocked that he did not try to recover his loaf until it was too late. He stood looking wistfully at the little dog away down the lane, and said: "Thank God, I still have my appetite." It is bad to be sick, but it is worse to be sick and not want to be well. It is bad to be in debt, but it is worse to be in debt and not want to get out. However, as I look about me my neighbors, nearly all, even those who are practically down and out, still have their appetites to come back and say: "Thank God, we are coming."

EARL HILL.

RAILROAD STRIKE CALLED OFF

The rail strike scheduled for October 30 was averted Friday night, when leaders of the switchmen, trainmen, conductors, engineers and firemen, at a joint meeting in Chicago, adopted a resolution withdrawing authorization for a walkout and officials of the railroad telegraphers' organization announced they would take similar action. These were the only unions which had authorized a strike.

"We haven't had time to get to that yet," was the remark of one union executive.

Union leaders said that the resolution adopted by the Labor Board announcing that no further wage reduction petitions for any one group of employees would be considered until rules and working conditions for that group had been settled was "decidedly instrumental" in bringing about the action calling off the walkout. They declared that they believed under this resolution it would be months before their pay will be reduced again.

Mr. Hooper expressed himself as being "tickled to death" over the conclusion of the walkout order.

"A railroad strike at this time would have been more disastrous than the Civil war," he said. "It would have brought on almost inconceivable hardships for everyone."

Mr. Hooper is vice chairman of the Labor Board and a member of the public group.

The deposed president Diaz of Mexico was part Indian.

FEEBLE BLOOD WORKS HAVOC

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Makes Red Blood; Liquid and Tablet Form.

When blood becomes thin and weak it is due to falling off in the number of blood cells. It is easily recognized by pallid skin or a bleached complexion, loss of appetite or unusual irritability and a sensation of weakness. It is not dangerous at first. In fact, many people scarcely notice it and go on for days thinking they will be better the next day.

The great danger is in the possibility of becoming seriously ill from disease, which can work havoc in a body that lacks the endurance and resistance in red, rich blood.

Taken in time and steadily, a few bottles of Gude's Pepto-Mangan are a great help. It improves the quality of the blood by adding red blood cells. They check the weakness, improve the appetite and clear the complexion.

You can get Gude's Pepto-Mangan in liquid and tablet form at your druggist's. Get the genuine with the name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" on the package.—Advertisement.
